Participants in the many weddings which have taken place during the past two weeks have in nearly every instance purchased their footwear here. They've come here because there is no stock in town which presents such a variety-and particularly in slippers. Dozens of exquisite conceptions in satins enhanced by lovely bows and buckles-dozens of effects in patent leathers trimmed with velvet in variety of shades with bows to match and with buckles of many sorts. And just as complete is the variety of footwear for use on the bridal tour-for traveling, for housewear, evening and reception wear.

With the advent of fall comes the sports, such as golfing, riding, shooting, etc. Golf footwear, particularly, is here in very complete assortment, and during the past two weeks we've been very busy supplying golf footwear to the golfers at Chevy Chase. All the novelties shown by New York shops are to be seen here.

Correction of children's temporary deformities in time will prevent them from becoming permanent. Mothers with children having such will be interested in the special footwear we show, made expressly to correct "toeing-in," bowed legs, weak ankles, etc. They are made on strictly scientific anatomical principles and indorsed by the leading physicians. This immense children's trade is due to the fact that we take as much care in fitting the little ones as the older people-for we realize the evils of ill-fitting footwear on growing children. One entire floor devoted to display and selling of juvenile shoes.

The girls and boys at school who engage in physical culture and gymnastic exercises require special footwear, and you can find it here in abundance.

MUSICAL MENTION.

The operetta, "A New Year Reception," which was given by Prof. Lawrence and his pupils at Langdon Tuesdty evening, was repeated at his studio Wednesday evening. On the former occasion it was stated that the parts of "Clara" and "Insie" were taken by Mrs. Marcau and Miss Mayer. This was a mistake, as the parts were assumed by Miss Kathren Byrne and Miss Beryl Gardner, who also appeared in them Wednesday. The part of "Smithers" was taken by Mr. George Wright at very short notice and played in a creditable manner.

Prof. Lawrence has cards out for the tenth anniversary of the opening of his conservatory in Washington, which will take place Tuesday evening next. He is also making preparations for a recital early in November, at which time a number of his pupils will make their first appearance in public.

The work of getting the new Washington Philharmonic Orchestra into shape is progressing rapidly and satisfactorily. The first three concerts given in Greater New York by Eduard Strauss and his Vienna orchestra have proved that the great conductor and his players are better than ever, and more popular even than when in America before. The Waldorf-Astoria opening was a society function, and served to reintroduce the maestro to the American people. The popular concert at the Metro-politan Opera House on Sunday, October 21, attracted one of the largest audiences that has ever been gathered into the great thea-ter. Col. and Mrs. Robt. I. Fleming have closed their summer home, Oak View, and are now in their new residence. No. 1403 Massachusetts avenue, where Mrs. Burrows, wife of Senator Burrows, has been visiting them for a few days this week. The Fleming home ranks among the finest residences at the capital. It is exceptionally spacious and so well arranged that it has all the cosiness of a luxurious residence, with the appointments necessary for entertaining on a generous scale. The depth of the house covers the lot and extends back to M street. The drawing room floor above the English basement is as elegant in its finish and furnishings as it is harmonious in its proportions. Near the drawing room, which is a splendid apartment, are the library, breakfast room and dining room, all opening on the large hall and starcase, which latter from basement to roof is a most beautiful feature of the house.

circle of friends who appreciated her love-ly character and kind heart. She was born in Kingston, N. H., and was a worthy rep-resentative of a family which numbered many notable men and women, including Governor Bartlett, a signer of the Declara-tion of Independence, and Historian Pres-cott. The deceased, who had so many ac-quaintances here, had spent the winters in this city for many years with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Grayson Dulin, and was al-ways greatly interested in everything con-cerning the capital and its development, although she was hindered by her failing health the last few years in taking an active part in social life. Her long and useful life came to an end at the Cambridge home of the family, in the midst of old associations and where many happy years had been spent. She was laid to rest in beautiful Mount Auburn cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

Marquise Pedroso was Miss. Camille Berghmans, daughter of the late Mrs. Lily Macalester Laughton, and is well known in this city, which was her mother's home during both her first and second widowhoods. Up to the time of his marriage with Miss Berghmans Senor Pedroso was an attache of the Spanish legation. The ceremony took place at "Glen Garry," Mrs. Berghmans' country place at Torresdale, Pa., and was an extremely fashionable event. The festivities which had previously attended Miss Berghmans' debut in society in this city were among debut in society in this city were among the notable affairs of that winter which was during the earlier part of Mr. Cleve-land's first administration and when Mrs. Laughton's prominence in the social world was at its height. Her former home in H street is now the winter residence of Sen-ator and Mrs. Cushman K. Davis. Marquis Pedroso succeeded to his father's title a few years ago. He and his wife have lived few years ago. He and his wife have lived in various European countries, but lately have returned to Madrid, where the former is chamberlain of the royal household and the marquise enjoys the intimate friendship of the queen regent. It is understood that their visit to this country will be of sufficient length to permit a stay in this city, where both have many warm friends. It is the first visit of their children to the land of their mother's birth.

What the wedding list may lack in numbers next week will be amply made up in the interesting features of the events, as well as the personalities of the happy young people themselves.
